MERGER STILL MOVING FORWARD

Despite government delays and the uncertainties caused by the impending election, at the General Assembly held Sept. 27, Father Patrick Malone expressed a general attitude of optimism concerning the merger.

He states "There is no turning back, our problems are those of making Concordia cohesive and successful."

There are legal matters to be settled before Concordia can become a legal entity. These include the change of name to Concordia, the bond issue of Loyola College, and the legal question of whether it is possible for Loyola to transfer all its assets to a new institution. He said that responsibility for the decision of whether to act through an Order-in-Council or through new legislation rests ultimately with the Department of Education.

One of the concerns raised in the question and answer period centered on "what happens to the two institutions in the interim?". Father Malone said that the Board of Concordia has recommended that action be pursued as far as possible, as if the new university were already in existence.

Another question concerned the issuing of degrees. Father Malone pointed out that Concordia degree cannot yet be issued, and that it is likely that fall convocation will be granted under the old arrangement with the University of Montreal. Decisions with regard to spring convocation will be made soon.

Father Malone also emphasized that in some areas possible problems that are being attributed to Concordia also apply to Sir George and Loyola

LOYOLA ENROLMENT SOARS

One of the few universities in the country with an increased enrolment, Loyola has registered 9,872 students in day and evening courses this year. Of these 4,672 are registered in full-time University and Collegial II. This year Collegial I is not offered. Evening Division accounts for 5,200 students.

University enrolment (apart from Collegial II) has increased by 904 students. Evening Division is up 300.

Grendon Haines, Director of Admissions, says that the increase is due in part to transfer students and to older students returning to university programs. University structures, he says, allow students to leave and continue on at a later date and many are doing this.

Doug Potvin, Director of Evening Division, says that while Evening Division has shown a student enrolment increase each year, there has been a return to student interest in job oriented courses. This year the Faculty of Commerce leads in course enrolment with 1300 registered in Business Administration and 1100 in Accounting.

STUDENTS AND BUSINESSMEN SEEK RAPPORT

The Alumni Association in conjunction with Loyola Commerce Students is again sponsoring the program "Bridges", in which some of Montreal's leading business executives find themselves back in the college classroom for a day leading the life of the student of the '70's.

The program is designed to promote understanding between students and businessmen. Last year 17 business executives from major Montreal corporations spent the day at Loyola attending classes, participating in class discussions and eating in students' dining areas.

In the return half of the two-way learning experience, the student becomes the executive's co-worker for a day, accompanying him in his daily routine in his office. Some students find themselves in fairly high-powered positions during their "business day". Among the executives who took part in last year's project were: Ronald J. Fairholm, President of Avon Cosmetics; Donald McNaughton, President of Canadian Schenley Industries; and Otto C. Cleyen, Vice-President of Texaco Canada.

The experiment was helpful to both parties and so is being repeated this year with many more people participating. Further information can be obtained by contacting Marc Deserres at the Commerce Association or the Alumni Office.

Environmentalists, exercise freaks, and protestors against parking tickets unite at Loyola.

SHAPING UP WITH "THE WARRIORS' CLUB"

The Sunday morning hockey league started its fall and winter program October 14. In addition to hockey, "The Warriors' Club" is offering a well-structured fitness program planned by Pete Regimbald, Athletic Director of the M.A.A.A. with personal programs tailored to individuals after thorough testing of his or her fitness level. Two ocometers are being used in the testing.

The Athletic Department also has a "Universal Gym" located in the Weight Room and available for the use of "The Warriors' Club" members. This is a weight-training device consisting of 16 stations (or 16 different exercises). All stations can be used at once and can change the amount of weight being used by adjusting a pin. It has been proven safe and there is no need for a "spotter" (the assistance of another person).

Also available to "Club" members are the following Co-ed Club activities: Judo, Karate, Yoga, Modern Dance, Aikido, Boxing, Fencing, Sky-diving, and Tai-Chi-Chuan. Each activity is supervised by an expert instructor and no particular skill level is required in order to join. Some clubs meet in the afternoons and some in the evenings. Contact Mrs. Pat Boland, Director of Co-ed Athletics, at 489-7284.

Fee for the fitness program is $15. However, you must be a member of "The Warriors' Club" (fee $10.). Alumni/alumnae as well as non-alumni friends are welcome to join. Information can be obtained from Pete Regimbald at 489-7284.

All Alumni are invited to the Athletic Complex to familiarize themselves with the equipment.

Hall-of-Famers Dr. Bob Brodrick, '43, and Joe Poirier, '57, are among those attending this year's Luncheon to be held in the new Campus Centre on Saturday, October 27 at 11:00 a.m. Price: adults $3.25, children $0.75.

OYSTER PARTY COMING SOON

Fall tradition at Loyola calls for the Alumni Association holding its Annual Oyster Party— and this year it's on Friday, November 9th at 8:00 p.m. in Loyola's Hingston Hall. The big news is that this year women alumni will be attending the festivities.

This event gives alumni members an opportunity to renew old acquaintances and make new ones. With the price of oysters continuing to skyrocket, fresh oysters have become a somewhat regal fare, but Loyola is remaining constant in its tradition.

Chairman of the Event is Gary Brown, '67 along with committee members Louis Gascon, '66, Bruce Kelly, '67, Terry Lodge, '68 and Derek Whips, '69.

Tickets are available at $6.50 per person at the Alumni Office, 7270 Sherbrooke Street West, Room 25. You are invited to bring as many guests as you wish.

The City of St. Laurent Scottish Pipe Band will perform at the Bishops/Loyola Football Game on Hall-of-Fame day, October 27th.

separately (notably, the possibility of faculty reduction caused by declining student enrolments). He states that the problems of higher education in Quebec are no different than in any other regions, and "we should be careful not to get too hysterical by attributing something to Quebec that is a characteristic of higher education all over the North American continent".
